Exploring the Good Death

with Jade Klemos

Wed. March 13, 2024, noon – 1:30 PM, Pacific Time

FREE – Online – Register HERE

The term 'good death' is a well-intentioned notion without definition. How does one evaluate whether a death is good or bad? In this experiential interactive presentation, Jade Klemos will lead an exploration of the "good death concept", share her definition of a good death as well as her tools to assist individuals in having the best death possible. Send us your thoughts on your definition of a good death before the event for a focused and lively discussion.

Judith Klemos, also known as Jade, has been a Death Walker since the age of 3. She is a Professional Guardian, Author, Poet, Siddha Anucara (Sacred Attendant), Energy Healer, Shamanic Practitioner and retired Licensed Social Worker. As an LSW she worked more than half of her career as a hospice social worker, but also worked with the elderly in nursing facilities and intellectually/physically challenged adults. You can learn more about Jade at Judithklemos.com or listen to The Death Witch Podcast. To peek at her special creations, take a look at her Etsy shop at JadeKlemos.etsy.com
